1 The Importance of Psychology to the Physical Educator 1

INTRODUCTION 2
 WHAT IS THE PSYCHOLOGY OF TEACHING PHYSICAL EDUCATION? 2
 WHY STUDY THE PSYCHOLOGY OF TEACHING PHYSICAL EDUCATION? 3
 To Help Teachers Address Their Concerns 3
 To Achieve Program Goals 4
 To Establish a Positive Learning Environment 5
 To Acquire Information and Applications Specific to Physical Education 5
 CHAPTER ORGANIZATION 6
 Theory Explanation 6
 Research Description 7
 Practical Applications 8
 STUDY TOOLS 8
 Scenario 8
 Focus Points 8
 Connected Concepts 9
 Key Concepts and Glossary 9
 Application Exercises 9
 SUMMARY 9
KEY CONCEPTS 10

2 Reinforcement 11

INTRODUCTION 12
 REINFORCEMENT THEORIES 13
 Behavioral Theory 13

Intrinsic Motivation and Extrinsic Rewards	17
Cognitive Evaluation Theory	18
REINFORCEMENT RESEARCH	19
Student Characteristics Related to the Use of Teacher Feedback	20
Reinforcement and Students' Motor Skill Performance	20
Teacher Feedback and Student Self-Perceptions	28
Reinforcement, Behavior Management, and Prosocial Behaviors	29
Reinforcement, Behavior Management, and Physical Activity	30
Cognitive Evaluation Theory Research	31
PRACTICAL GUIDELINES FOR REINFORCEMENT IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION	33
Guidelines for Using Punishment	33
Guidelines for Giving Teacher Verbal Feedback	35
Guidelines for Giving Extrinsic Rewards	42
Example of the Effective Use of Extrinsic Rewards	46
Create a Behavior Management Program	47
Use the Personalized System of Instruction Model	48
SUMMARY	50
KEY CONCEPTS	51
APPLICATION EXERCISES	51

3

Modeling	53
INTRODUCTION	54
MODELING THEORIES	54
Social Learning Theory	55
Cognitive Mediation Theory	55
Learning from Observing a Model	58
MODELING RESEARCH	59
The Effectiveness of Modeling	59
Model Characteristics	61
Modeling Frequency and Timing	63
Use of Verbal Cues with Modeling	65
Rehearsal Strategies and Modeling	65
Auditory Modeling	66
EFFECTIVE MODELING IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION	67
Use a Variety of Models	67
Use Peer Coping Models	68
Explain That Perfection Is Not Required	69
Demonstrate Frequently	70
Repeat Verbal Cues During Demonstrations	70
Students Should Verbally Rehearse Cues	71

Give the Model Feedback During Demonstrations	72
Increase Motivation	73
Peer Teaching Instructional Model	75
Use Auditory Modeling with Temporal Tasks	78
Combine Reinforcement with Modeling to Enhance Prosocial Behaviors	78
SUMMARY	80
KEY CONCEPTS	81
APPLICATION EXERCISES	81

4

Moral Development 83

INTRODUCTION	84
DEFINING SPORTSPERSONSHIP AND MORAL REASONING	84
MORAL DEVELOPMENT THEORIES	85
Social Learning Theory	85
Structural Developmental Approaches	86
MORAL DEVELOPMENT RESEARCH	89
Age, Gender, and Moral Reasoning	89
Traditional Physical Education and Moral Development	90
Effectiveness of Social Learning and Structural Developmental Strategies	90
Instructional Models and Curricula Research	94
ENHANCING MORAL DEVELOPMENT IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION	98
Social Learning Strategies	98
Structural Development Strategies	101
Use an Instructional or Curricular Model That Addresses Prosocial Behaviors	102
SUMMARY	115
KEY CONCEPTS	115
APPLICATION EXERCISES	116

5

Achievement Goals 117

INTRODUCTION	118
PRINCIPLES OF ACHIEVEMENT GOAL THEORY	118
Goal Perspectives	119
Dispositional Goal Orientations	121
Motivational Climate	122
Approach and Avoidance Goals	129
ACHIEVEMENT GOAL RESEARCH	130
Manipulating the Motivational Climate	130
Changing Goal Orientations	131

Positive Affect	131
Student Behaviors	132
Self-Perceptions	132
Attributions	133
Beliefs About the Purpose of Physical Education	134
Participation in Physical Education	135
Student Perceptions of Teacher Behavior	135
Gender	136
Approach and Avoidance Goals in Physical Education	136
MEANS OF ENHANCING TASK INVOLVEMENT IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION	137
Use Stations	137
Use the Games Stages	138
Help Students Set Individual, Short-Term Goals	141
Use Alternative Assessments	141
Offer Students Choices	146
SUMMARY	147
KEY CONCEPTS	148
APPLICATION EXERCISES	148

Self-Perceptions 149

INTRODUCTION	150
SELF-PERCEPTION TERMS	150
SELF-PERCEPTION THEORIES	152
Competence Motivation Theory	153
Self-Efficacy Theory	156
SELF-PERCEPTIONS RESEARCH	160
Student Characteristics	161
Accuracy of Perceptions	163
Sources of Competence Information	164
Psychological Factors Related to Self-Perceptions	169
Self-Perceptions and Motivated Behaviors	170
Self-Perceptions and Physical Activity Participation	171
Self-Perceptions and Instructional Models	172
MEANS OF ENHANCING SELF-PERCEPTIONS IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION	173
Help Students Experience Success	173
Teach Students to Use Imagery	178
Teach Student Arousal Regulation Techniques	182
Offer Students a Choice of Coed or Same-Sex Classes/Units	183
SUMMARY	184

KEY CONCEPTS	185
APPLICATION EXERCISES	185

7

Attributions	187
INTRODUCTION	188
ATTRIBUTION THEORY	188
Classifications of Attributions	190
Consequences of Attributions Classifications	191
Attributions and Motivation	192
The Attribution Process	193
The Developmental Nature of Attributions	193
LEARNED HELPLESSNESS	194
Pervasiveness and Permanence of Learned Helplessness	195
Mediators of Controllability	196
ATTRIBUTION RESEARCH	198
Student Characteristics	198
Consequences of Attribution Types	201
LEARNED HELPLESSNESS RESEARCH	202
Types of Attributions	202
Age	202
Task Persistence	203
Goal Orientations	203
ATTRIBUTION RETRAINING	204
TEACHER EXPECTATIONS RESEARCH	204
Performance Cues	205
Person Cues	205
Variables Affected by Teacher Expectations	206
Expectancy Process Reminders	208
PRACTICAL IMPLICATIONS FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION	208
Become Aware of Students' Attributions	209
Identify Learned Helpless Students	211
Conduct Attribution Retraining Sessions	216
Develop Accurate, Realistic, and Flexible Expectations for Students	222
Monitor Your Attributions for Student Performance Outcomes	223
Make Adaptive Attributions for Student Performance Outcomes	225
Provide Equal Opportunities for Students	228
Create Leadership and Responsibility Roles for Students	229
Develop Realistic, but Optimistic Expectations for Attribution Change	230
SUMMARY	230

KEY CONCEPTS	231
APPLICATION EXERCISES	231

Interest and Value 233

INTRODUCTION	234
TYPES OF INTEREST	234
Personal Interest	234
Situational Interest	235
VALUE	236
RESEARCH ON INTEREST AND VALUE	237
Relationships to Achievement and Performance	238
Relationships to Motivated Learning Behaviors and Intentions	238
Student Characteristics Related to Interest and Value	240
Sources of Subjective Task Value	244
Dimensions of Situational Interest	246
MEANS OF ENHANCING INTEREST IN AND VALUE FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION	247
Personal vs. Situational Interest	247
Meet Students' Personal Interests	248
Catch Interest with Technology	251
Hold Interest with Personal Meaning	252
Offer Novel Activities	254
Challenge Students Cognitively	254
Arouse Students' Intention to Explore	256
Use a Different Instructional Model	257
Create a Content Development	261
Use Teaching by Invitation and Intratask Variations	267
Diminish Gender-Role Stereotyping	268
SUMMARY	269
KEY CONCEPTS	269
APPLICATION EXERCISES	270

9

Motivation 271

INTRODUCTION	272
MOTIVATION DEFINED	272
SELF-DETERMINATION THEORY	273
Intrinsic Motivation	274
Extrinsic Motivation	275
Amotivation	277

Consequences of the Motivational Orientations	277
Role of the Social Context	278
The Motivational Process in Self-Determination Theory	279
MOTIVATION RESEARCH	280
Student Characteristics	281
Motivational Orientations and Consequences	282
Need Satisfaction and Motivation	284
Social Context	286
STRATEGIES TO POSITIVELY INFLUENCE STUDENT MOTIVATION IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION	290
Moving Students from Amotivation to Intrinsic Motivation	291
Reduce Students' Body Image Concerns	293
Establish Strong Teacher–Student Relationships	294
Emphasize the Cooperation Within Competition	295
Promote an Incremental View of Ability	295
Establish a Structured Learning Environment	296
SUMMARY	297
KEY CONCEPTS	298
APPLICATION EXERCISES	298

Physical Activity and Lifestyle Enhancement 299

INTRODUCTION	300
THE YOUTH PHYSICAL ACTIVITY PROMOTION MODEL	301
Predisposing Factors	301
Reinforcing Factors	303
Enabling Factors	304
Personal Demographics	304
Designing Interventions	305
YOUTH PHYSICAL ACTIVITY RESEARCH	306
Does Early Participation Lead to Participation Later in Life?	306
Demographics	307
Predisposing Factors	309
Reinforcing Factors	312
Enabling Factors	315
The Impact of Physical Education on Physical Activity Levels	318
Other Interventions to Enhance Students' Overall Physical Activity Levels	321
ENHANCING STUDENT PHYSICAL ACTIVITY LEVELS	323
Increase Physical Activity Levels During Physical Education Class	323
Emphasize Physical Activity over Physical Fitness	327
Teach Students Self-Management Skills	329

Inform Students About Physical Activity Opportunities Available Outside of School	333
Promote Peer Involvement	334
Ensure All Students Are Included	337
Identify Religious and Cultural Principles Related to Physical Activity	338
Model a Physically Active Lifestyle	339
Include Lifetime Physical Activities	339
Collaborate with Other School Staff	340
Increase Physical Activity Opportunities at School	341
Involve Parents/Caretakers and Other Family Members	343
Encourage Active Transport to School	345
SUMMARY	345
KEY CONCEPTS	346
APPLICATION EXERCISES	347

Appendix A

A.1 Survey to Determine Elementary Students' Perceptions of Rewards	350
A.2 Form for Assessing Prosocial Behaviors in Physical Education	351
A.3 Scoring Sheet for a Daily Point System for Sport Education Units	352
A.4 Goal-Setting Sheet	353
A.5 Closed-Response Exit Slip	354
A.6 "Getting to Know You" Survey	355
A.7 "Reasons for Outcomes" Form	356
A.8 Unlimited-Choice Survey to Identify Students' Personal Activity Interests	357
A.9 Limited-Choice Survey to Identify Students' Personal Activity Interests	358
A.10 Ranked-Choice Survey to Identify Students' Personal Activity Interests	359
A.11 Recording Sheet for SOFIT Student Physical Activity Levels	360
A.12 Awareness of Time Use Sheet	362
A.13 Decision-Balance Sheet	363
